"THE DEVIL'S PAWN"

Star: Pola Negri

Authors: John Brennert and John Kraly

The story is laid in Petrograd and revolves around a girl who placed her education above everything else. Finding that success does not immediately meet her efforts and that she is about to be arrested because the law will not permit her, a Jewess, stranger from an other city, to remain in Petrograd, she submits to the disgrace of procuring 'the yellow ticket'. She however adopts the name of another girl whose birth certificate she has found and whom she knows to be dead. Her plans are successful and she is admitted to the University, whither she goes to study medicine. At the end of the year she wins the gold medal as the best student, as well as the interest of the foremost professor. She is, however, loved by a young medical student. Under stress of financial circumstances the girl is induced by her landlady to use 'the yellow ticket', but at the house to which she goes she finds the man who loves her. He realises everything in a flash and the girl is broken-hearted. A chain of incidents now reveals why the professor showed interest in the girl, since she is his natural daughter, her mother having died at the child's birth. Shortly afterwards a hurried case is brought in, calling for an immediate operation. The doctor operates without observing the identity of the case and only when he is about to give up does he recognise his daughter. He then redoubles his efforts and is ultimately successful. The girl had endeavored to suicide because her sweetheart had left her, but with her recovery he learns that she has been innocent all the time and there is a happy reconciliation.
